

Daniel Köhler, M.A.,; M.P.S.
Analyst & Research Consultant
EXIT Germany
ZDK Gesellschaft Demokratische Kultur gGmbH

17 Jun 2013

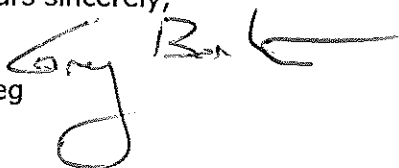

Dear Daniel,

On behalf of Monash University, the Global Terrorism Research Centre (GTReC) and the Monash Radicalisation Project, I would like to thank EXIT-Germany for their assistance in providing our project a unique opportunity to gain timely, contemporary and appropriate empirical data to assist us with our research goals.

The Monash Radicalisation Project examines how multiple factors lead individuals to become radicalised and conduct violent extremist acts. Our approach integrates a mix of political, social and psychological insights to forge a multidisciplinary model of radicalisation, counter-radicalisation and de-radicalisation, focusing on the Australian context. With EXIT – Germany's assistance our findings will facilitate better counter-terrorism policy-making and practice by generating insights into the unique processes of radicalisation and identifying potential counter-measures.

EXIT – Germany understands importance and intrinsic value of the academic research into violent extremism and at all times adhered to the highest levels of professional conduct and ethics when facilitating our data collection. We look forward to developing our research relationship with EXIT in the future.
Regards,

Yours sincerely,

Greg

Prof Greg Barton
Herb Felth Professor for the Study of Indonesia
Director International, Global Terrorism Research Centre (GTReC)
Acting Director Centre for Islam and the Modern World (CIMOW)
Co-editor Islam and Christian-Muslim Relations
Deputy UNESCO Chair in Interreligious and Intercultural Relations – Asia Pacific